Description:
Psych 195A (Fieldwork in Psychology) offers undergraduate students the opportunity to work (paid or non-paid) in a pre-approved organization, that has a psychological or therapeutic orientation, and earn 4 units of upper division course credit. Students are required to work a minimum of 6 hours per week for the 10-week quarter and attend a two-hour weekly seminar, which meets every Friday 9:00am to 11:00am. Attendance during the entire seminar is mandatory. If you cannot attend the seminar, you may not enroll in this Fieldwork course. During the seminar, students are required to complete either a six to eight page typed library research paper or three two-page typed bi-weekly papers. This course is not offered during Summer Sessions. For Fall Quarter, we are only approving remote internships. Internships that involve in-person work must be petitioned for approval, and the site supervisor must provide reasoning as to why the work cannot be done remotely.

Course Guidelines:

- Once you turn in your Psych 195A Contract, you will be enrolled in Psych 195A (2 units) and Psych 194A (2 units), for a total of 4 P/NP units.
- Sophomore, Junior, or Senior standing is required.
- Students must do the work in the same quarter in which the Fieldwork class is taken for credit.
- Only 12 units from any combination of courses 185, 192, 194, 195, 196 may be applied toward undergraduate degree.
- The Fieldwork in Psychology course does not satisfy any major requirement for Psychology, Psychobiology, or Cognitive Science majors.

Satisfying Course Requirements:
The grade of P or NP will be determined by the Psych Advising Office once we have received a report that all work has been completed in the weekly Friday seminar and through the Evaluation of Student report from your fieldwork supervisor, indicating whether or not you have completed all hours and fulfilled all course requirements.

Organization’s Responsibilities:
The fieldwork supervisor will train and supervise the student. The supervisor will provide an initial orientation that includes an explanation of the organization’s overall purpose and operations and how they relate to the student. The supervisor will give feedback as to what is expected in order to give credit for the course and provide related materials. The supervisor will also evaluate the student’s performance upon completion of the course confirming that all course requirements have been fulfilled.
